

Beggar Woman

Marc Levine–Vocals and Guitar; Nochi Krohn–Vocals & Shaker; C Lanzbom–Slide Guitar; Recorded at Marc Levine Studio Hollywood, FL & Nochi Krohn Studios, NY; Mixed by Nochi Krohn

Today, she was sitting on the street
Sorrow in her eyes, a tin can at her feet
Holes in her stockings and holes in her shoes
She's an old beggar woman no stranger to bad news

I reached in my pocket to give a bill or two
In my heart I was trying to see what I could do.
She thanked me for the money, I turned to walk away
But I waited for a moment as she began to say...

“G-d loves the widow and the orphan and the blind
The old and the needy who haven't got a dime
G-d loves the sickly in his eyes we're all the same
And G-d he loves you too, You just call upon His name.”

I don't know where she came from,
I don't know her at all.
The wrinkles on her face, they kinda tell it all
So reach in your pocket and give a bill or two
And you can thank G-d in Heaven that the beggar isn't you.

G-d loves the widow and the orphan and the blind
The old and the needy who haven't got a dime
G-d loves the sickly in his eyes we're all the same
And G-d he loves you too, You just call upon His name